Bay-Waveland schools to begin providing health alert program

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District will begin a new program next week that will help parents guard their children's health.

Superintendent of Education Roger Oge said Tuesday that parents will now be notified whenever a child suffering from a communicable disease is discovered attending classes.

When a teacher becomes aware of a child with a contagious illness such as chicken pox, mumps or flu, the students in that class will be given printed health alert cards with information on the disease.

The children will be instructed to give the cards to their parents.

The cards, Oge explained, contain a health alert indicating that the child may have been exposed to the disease, but will also provide information on incubation period, symptoms, normal recuperation time, care and precautions that should be taken.

The cards are pre-printed and include various common communicable diseases, with a color-coding system to help teachers select the proper card to send home.

They will not be given out, however, for colds or head lice, which Oge said are "too common" to be included in the program.

A firefighters seminar was conducted by the managers of Borg-Warner Chemicals Baymar Plant at Port Bienville Industrial Park last Thursday.

The seminar was to educate firefighters about the chemicals Borg Warner uses at its Port Bienville Industrial Park to manufacture plastics and the industry's firefighting capabilities.

Representatives from BaySide Volunteer East Hancock and Waveland Fire departments paricipated in the day-long seminar which included tours of the industry's two plants located at the Hancock County Industrial Park.

Leo Kowal, Borg-Warner Baymar manager in welcoming the firefighters stated, "The information we want to share with you is the 'Chemical Industry' in general, plus our own plant in particular."

"Chemical plants all over the world automatically raise concerns to a community, as we have all, heard about chlorine gas in World War I, stories of other poisonous agents in warfare, chemical incidents, therefore we, the public, do not get regular positive information on the chemical industry," Kowal added.

Kowal continued, "The chemical industry is the safest in America, based on a 1984 National Safety Council report. Reportable incidents at chemical plants are 0.49 cases per 100 employees, compared with the transit industry's recorded 8.47 cases."

The report shows the median for all industry as 2.15 cases for 100 employees.

In a review of a five-year federal study by Lance Wallace, an EPA scientist, revealed that toxic chemicals found in every home, from paint to common cleaning solvents, are three times more likely to cause cancer than airborne pollutants, even in neighborhoods close to chemical plants.

"It was difficult to accept for a while. But a number of studies ... concluded the same thing," Wallace said in the report.

Chemical plants must meet state and federal regulations. Process incinerators require a 92 per cent destruction, "Our plant incinerators destroy 99.9 per cent," Kowal stated.

There are 12,000 chemical-manufacturing plants in the United States of which 6,300 are located in the top 25 metropolitan areas where 75 per cent of all Americans live, Kowal revealed.

Kowal said, "There are 48,000 chemicals in commercial use in this country. We take most for granted. We use them daily. Certainly plastics are part of our modern society."

Kowal asked the group if this meeting could be conducted if all plastics were removed from the room saying, "I hope you're all

ABSENTEE VOTING

Hancock County Circuit Clerk and Registrar of Voters Pam Metzler reports her office will be open from 8 a.m. to noon Saturday to accommodate absentee voters in the March 29 Runoff election.

wearing cotton or wool."

In commenting on a recent study the plant manager added, "Had not man developed plastics and we were dependent on cotton and wool for our clothing, carpets, draperies, etc., the cotton fields and sheep ranches would now consume the entire farmland in the United States."

The report cited paints, cleansers, plastics, cosmetics and building materials as possible sources of toxic chemicals in the home. Some sources were as familiar as cigarette smoke (benzene), but others, like taking a shower, came as a surprise.

Showering is suspected as the primary cause of elevated levels of chloroform in nearly every home, Wallace pointed out, because of the chlorine in water.

The study generally found toxic chemical levels indoors at three times the outdoor rate.

"We at Baymar are very proud of our plant, ... we believe in being responsive and responsible to our employees, to our community. We are deeply concerned about our environment; we like this community and we want to keep it environmentally clear for all to enjoy," Kowal emphasized.

At the Port Bienville Plant, the suspected carcinogen, acrylonitrile, is one of the raw materials used in the production of the plastic pellets that are shipped to other plants for further processing. Any acrylonitrile wastes are stored under rigid regulations until moved by truck to a hazardous waste disposal plant in Morgan City, La. for burning under controlled conditions, Kowal said.

Rick Laughry, Baymar safety engineer, explained the local industry's fire protection systems which includes three water storage tanks on the site; two hold 1,000,000 gallons and one holds 950,000 gallons.

NORMAN MONTGOMERY

The facility has three diesel-driven water pumps, two rate 3,500 GPM at 125 PSI and one rates 3,000 GPM at 125 PSI.

Firefighters were impressed with the amount of firefighting capabilities at Borg-Warner, from the Halon systems to the most modern types of sprinkler systems.

The plant's managers emphasized the importance the industry puts into an employee's continuous training.

Kowal said, "Each Borg-Warner Baymar employee discharges a fire extinguisher once a year. We have a lot of meetings, a lot of discussions."

Laughry explained there are 16 automatic sprinkler systems, more than 200 stored pressure extinguishers, the hose houses and all of the numerous firefighting equipment located at the facility, in addition to numerous types of alarm systems.

Norman Montgomery, assistant plant manager talked about the classes and types of emergencies and how they are handled at Borg-Warner.

"We have put $1 million into this facility to prevent fires from happening, and to deal with them in case they happen with prevention being first and quick response being second."

Port commission votes to evict airport operator

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission has agreed to end a lease with Inovair International Limited, the fixed base operator at Stennis Airport.

With a single dissenting vote by Commissioner Russell Elliott, the commission agreed Tuesday to evict Inovair for failure to comply with the terms of the lease.

Elliott said he agreed that Inovair was not conforming, but felt the matter could be handled by methods other than eviction.

According to Commission Attorney Robert Genin, who went over the background of the problem with the commission before the vote, Inovair President William Carson had been given a 30-day notice regarding the fixed base operator's lease. The notice expired Friday.

The Port and Harbor Commission has been communicating with Inovair over noncompliances since late 1986, shortly after the firm took over as fixed base operator.

Carson has met with the commission several times and written letters indicating that he would comply, but according to Genin there is little aircraft maintenance being performed at Stennis, no flight instructions, no rental aircraft and no apparent increase in the number of planes using Stennis as their base.

The noncompliance involves Inovair's failure to provide flight instruction, aircraft maintenance, regular reports on fuel sales, rental aircraft and an increase in the number of planes based at the airport.

The entire commission, with exception of absent commissioner Nancy Gex, also voted to give Carson son 30 days to pay back rent on a second lease.

That lease includes Hangar B, a concrete apron in front of Hangar B and tie-down areas for private planes.

Genin said there was no delinquent rent on the fixed base operator lease.

Two members of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, Michael Ladner of Beat Five and Omer Haas of Beat Four, attended the commission meeting. Ladner indicated that the full board is expected to support the commission's decision.

The board of supervisors has to grant final approval on the actions of the commission before they can be carried out.

The next scheduled board meeting will be 9 a.m. Wednesday at the Hancock County Courthouse.

Culvert work to close Beach Road, detour traffic to Buccaneer Park

BY DENA BISNETTE

A section of Beach Road will be closed next week during repairs of damaged box culverts in Beat One and traffic to Buccaneer State Park will have to be rerouted.

The road will be closed to through traffic beginning Monday, March 28, between Sears Avenue in Waveland and Clermont Road in Clermont Harbor, County Engineer Larry Seal said.

There are no residences along that section of road.

The work is the first part of a $412,578 contract awarded to J.H. Moon. Construction of Ridgeland March 7 by the Hancock County Board of Supervisors.

The concrete box culverts, reinforced by steel, include three in Beat One and one in Beat Three north of US-90.

The Beat Three culvert is located at the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club. At the board meeting when he made his recommendation to award the contract to Moon, Seal told the board members that the Beat Three culvert is the least damaged of the four, but still needs replacement.

The other three are located at Sand Bayou, Grand Bayou and Clermont Harbor, and Seal has stated that they are all "on the verge of collapse."

The box culvert replacements are among the first major steps in the board's work toward one of the eight goals announced by Board President Ronald Cuevas in January, the establishment of a comprehensive repair and maintenance program for Beach Road and the county's two shore protection devices, the seawall and the sand beach.

Greg Smith, manager of Buccaneer State Park, said that he plans to reroute camper traffic down Central Avenue to Sears Avenue, then down South Street to Clermont Harbor and back to Beach Boulevard in order to bypass the Grand Bayou culvert, which is the first one scheduled for work.

Traffic travelling east on US-90 will be rerouted to Lakeshore Road. Vehicles travelling west on Beach Boulevard will detour at Sears Avenue.

Smith said signs will be posted regarding the detours.

The park manager said he and the board had tried to work out a detour that would have permitted park visitors to continue using the usual routes that consisted mostly of Beach Road, but were unsuccessful.

According to Smith, the detour

He has been told by the contractor that it will take about 30 days to finish the Grand Bayou culvert.

He said he is not expecting any problems with the other two Beat One culverts, Sand Bayou and Clermont Harbor, although some of the detour signs will have to be removed.

He said the only rerouting necessary for the repair of the other two culverts, which he said he understands will be done separately to prevent interruption of business for the Paddlewheel Motel and Restaurant, will be for those park visitors who normally use Lower Bay or Lakeshore roads.

The back gate will remain closed. The timing of the project, he explained, is bad for business.

"They were supposed to have started this thing last month. Now it will hit us right at Easter," Smith said.

Colonial deeds often refer to unfamiliar money

By Dr. Betty Drake

Old deeds, wills and court documents from Colonial times often refer to kinds of money not familiar in the 20th century.

A recently published book "Colonial American English," lists a number of terms referring to money and defines them. Some of them are:

proclamation money: the British equivalent of foreign coins circulating in the Colonies as established by Queen Anne in 1704;

Spanish-milled dollar: one struck in Spain containing .77 ounces of silver; continental: currency or securities issued by Continental Congress after 1774.

North Carolina lawful money: refers to the pound sterling of Great Britain;

Some other terms, seen less frequently are:

Spanish heavy dollar: a Mexican silver dollar;

cob money: Spanish pieces of eight, aka peso;

dog dollar: a Dutch silver dollar of the 1600s;

ducaton: a silver coin of the Italians and Flemish, 1598 plus;

doubloon: a Spanish gold coin worth 16 silver dollars, pre-Revolutionary War;

Dutch pound: 18 ounces of silver, 1600s;

red money: Maryland paper money of 1781—had red borders.

National Genealogical Society Convention: don't forget the first national convention for genealogists in Biloxi April 27-30. Many outstanding researchers and writers will be there and informative talks on many aspects of genealogy will be presented."

Burners, planters urged to watch for phone lines

South Central Bell is asking help from planters or those who plan to "burn-off" their property this season.

Pat Santucci, district manager, said these two activities cause many interruptions of telephone service when done incorrectly.

"Before customers start digging, we ask that they be mindful of buried telephone lines below the ground," said Santucci.

"Also, please be considerate of any telephone junction boxes or pedestals on your property or on the road right-of-way that may be in the area you plan to burn," she added.

Not only are these occurrences expensive and time-consuming to repair, but it creates quite an inconvenience to the customer who cannot use their telephone, even for emergencies.

"Any property owner who plans to burn off his land should call 1-800-227-6477 our toll free number. We will send a representative to locate and mark any telephone equipment in the area. This is the same service we offer for those who plan to dig or excavate and are not sure of telephone cables in the area," Santucci concluded.

Quotables by CUEVAS '88

April Fool's Day which is celebrated on April 1 of each year will mean a lot more for the citizens of the City of Waveland during 1988.

April Fool's Day has been designated by an order of Mayor John Longo Jr. as the deadline day for men to begin growing beards or mustaches so that the facial hair will be of sufficient length to meet the requirements of 'Centennial Law.'

Women of the city are to comply with the mayor's edict by dressing in the fashions of the 1890's.

Waveland, whose residents like for the 'paradise' to be referred to as the 'Hospitality City,' is going all out to make 1988 a year to remember.

Parties, picnics, dances, and parades are among the many festivities planned in the coming months.

A recent dinner of Red Beans and Rice is still being talked about.

It is our understanding that the male residents of Waveland who fail to comply with the 'Centennial Law' will be subject to continual taunts, jokes, digs and other harassments from their fellow citizens.

We know one resident of Waveland, who is complying with the 'Centennial Law' and is receiving taunts, jokes, digs and other harassments from his wife. To add fuel to the 'fire' I have told his wife I agree with her.

So it looks like some folks will have a hard time complying with 'Centennial Law' from several directions and everyone appears to be in for a good time.

I am sure glad the 'Centennial Law' is just for residents of Waveland.

Many of us at times fail to realize the importance bands play in our school activities.

The month of March has been designated as Music in Schools Month across the nation.

In our area high schools usually have some type of booster club whose members support the school's band throughout the year.

The supporters of our bands do a fine job, but like anything else, they could use more help.

It takes a lot of student dedication to be a band member as it involves many, many hours of practice.

Bands perform at many of the yearly school functions as well as numerous parades throughout the year.

So, we at this time would like to salute all band leaders, band members and band supporters.

Tuesday is election day for the residents of Hancock County.

There will be primary run-offs in both the Democratic and Republican parties.

As you know, if a person voted as a Republican or Democratic in the first primary three weeks ago, they must vote the same party on Tuesday.

If a qualified elector failed to vote in the first primary, they can still vote on Tuesday for the party of their choice.

It is important for all qualified electors to vote on Tuesday.

Remember to remind your neighbors and friends that Tuesday is election day.

See you at the polls.

Downtown Merchants Association membership requires generous and unselfish spirit

To The Editor,
Sea Coast Echo,
Bay St. Louis

Dear Editor,

As a member of the Bay St. Louis Downtown Merchants Association, I may kindly take the opportunity of praising the association and calling to the attention of citizens of the city and county some very important activities of this association.

First, the Downtown Merchants Association firmly believes in the future of our lovely city on the bay. So much so, that we have actively developed and promoted a program of community activity to bring all our citizens together for many special free events designed to develop a sense of togetherness and pride in our city.

Action has been the key word with this group!

The series of free concerts in City Park behind City Hall is a good example. Incidentally, the next free concert for the public will be on Saturday, Apr. 9, with the grounds opening at 5 p.m. and the Cajun concert to begin at 6:30 p.m.

Food and drink will be available on the grounds.

The concert will feature a great Cajun band from Louisiana, Laissez Faire, now playing in the Quarter.

It's all free, and is designed to stimulate a feeling of community pride. The complete cooperation of the mayor and council is a major factor in these concert presentations.

The Beachfront Festival is another big example of action and the festival this year will feature, hopefully, a complete array of exhibits featuring all of the industries in the county as well as booths and exhibits and displays from NSTL, the military and charitable, social and civic endeavors in the county.

In short, a festival full of entertainment and information about our whole area—a way of everyone joining together to put our entire county's best foot forward!

The Beachfront Festival will be held on Sunday, June 5, and the association promises everyone a great time.

We do desperately need, however, for all commercial, industrial, civic, charitable, cottage industry businesses, military entities to use the festival as a place to show the Coast what is going on in Hancock County.

All are welcome and can reserve space by simply contacting any downtown merchant.

Our group of 'Ambassadors' is very concerned with the condition of our beaches, believing that with Harrison County just completing its long overdue restoration of beaches that we are going to be left behind as kind of a backwater of the Coast.

If you want to take an active part in working to get action regarding restoration of our all important beaches, then perhaps our group is for you. We are Ambassadors for the Bay.

The association is composed of busy people but they are not so busy to fail to realize that citizen apathy is our number one enemy. If you believe that things can't be changed, that nobody wants progress, that only a few people run this city, then you are not the type of person that will be happy in our working group.

But, if you believe that people working together with a generous and unselfish spirit can accomplish great things, then you must join at once.

We are trying to do our part. Together, the Downtown Merchants Association, the Chamber of Commerce, our very excellent mayor and City Council, our new board of supervisors, can build and lead our city to prosperity in every phase of life on our beautiful Gulf Coast. Let's get started.

What can each of us do to begin positive action along with these groups? Well, for starters, we get to the city council meetings and attend, if only as observers.

The mayor and council publish paid notices of each meeting and only a very, very, few people show up.

What do we expect of our trusted servants if we sit back and don't participate in governing?

We get exactly what we have to day...apathy!

Attend the board of supervisors meeting. Join the Senior Citizens activity. Become involved in whatever turns you on and participate.

Join our association. We have acres of diamonds in our own backyard.

We who can contribute to the overcoming of illiteracy right here in this county making it the most literate county in Mississippi.

Join the tutoring program at the library. These are only a few items of action.

We have the ability. We have the brains. We have all we need to do it. We will either use these tools or we will lose them! Let's get started with personal action!

News from the Capitol City

By Kevin D. Jones

Bills that would do everything from boost state employees pay to legalize students drug tests, to stiffen penalties for drunk driving were among the literally dozens of measures that made it past a major legislative deadline last week.

Not escaping the Thursday (March 17) deadline for passage in either the full House or the full Senate were proposals to allow gambling on jai alai in Tunica County, to make auto liability insurance compulsory, and a measure to let voters decide municipal annexation cases.

A bill in the House to mandate a centralized county-unit system died in committee, but a looser measure that would allow counties to divide into five road districts passed the Senate. Supporters of a centralized county-unit system still hope that the Senate-passed bill can be strengthened in the House.

Proposals to appropriate funds or raise taxes, as well as local and private legislations face a yet-to-come deadline.

Major legislation to raise teachers and state employees salaries passed as well. Both measures, along with almost every bill still alive after the deadline, now must be passed by the other house. A bill to study consolidation of state government was signed into law by Gov. Ray Mabus.

On Saturday, March 12, the House of Representatives approved a $772 million bill to fund the state's elementary and secondary schools. The allocation, which accounts for about 42 percent of the state's $1.8 billion general fund budget, also gives teachers an average annual raise of $3,700.

If the Senate follows suit and gives its approval, it would count as a major victory for Gov. Ray Mabus, who based much of his recent election campaign on a pledge to raise teachers pay to the Southeastern average.

On its own, the Senate voted for pay raises for virtually every public servant in the state, from Supreme Court Justices to county sheriffs at a cost of $5.6 million.

Property taxes could rise under another Senate-approved bill, which wiped out the 10 percent cap on annual increases in the property tax receipts of cities and counties. Limits on tax increases for entities such as hospital districts and the Grand Gulf nuclear power plant were also lifted, but the 10 percent cap was kept for taxes collected by school districts.

The House approved a bill to toughen the state's driving-under-the-influence laws by preventing judges from suspending penalties against drivers who are repeat offenders. In the upper chamber, senators went along with Lt. Gov. Brad Dye's plan to allow drug testing of students by urinalysis if their parents consent.

A long-standing ban on the advertising of liquor and wine by newspapers, TV and radio stations and bill boards was wiped out by the House.

A weakened version of a bill to establish renters' rights was passed in the House after a stronger bill was killed by a single vote. Under the revised bill, compliance with the law would essentially be voluntary. Mississippi and Alabama are the only states that do not have laws similar to the original, tough legislation that requires landlords to provide safe housing with adequate plumbing and heating, hot and cold running water, and weather-tight walls and windows. Under laws in the other 48 states, tenants are required to maintain rental property and pay for damage they cause.

Professional sports agents would be prohibited from contracting with college and high school athletes until they have used up their eligibility in a Senate bill. But the upper chamber turned thumbs down on a measure that would have required Mississippi's "Big Three" schools, Ole Miss, Mississippi State and Southern Mississippi to play each other every third year.

HB 1034. This bill authorizes the advertising of alcoholic beverages in newspapers, magazines, TV and radio. Comprett, yes.

HB 890. This bill increases the salaries of most state and county elected officials, and many agency heads. Comprett, yes.

HB 1281. This bill funds the state minimum education program, which pays for the operation of elementary and secondary schools, with $772 million. It also includes a provision to raise teachers' annual salaries by an average of $3,700, up to the Southeastern average. Comprett, absent or not voting.

SB 2507, amendment 1. The bill establishes an annual salary for justice court judges, with judges in more populated counties earning more. Currently, justice court judges are paid by fees. The amendment sets up a 20 percent ceiling on the raises justice court judges receive, with county supervisors given the responsibility for deciding the actual percent judges' salaries are raised. Taylor, no; Tate, yes.

STEAKHOUSE SYNDROME

Q.—I sometimes experience an alarming difficulty in swallowing steak, which seems to become "stuck" in my chest. Are these recurring incidents purely coincidental?

A—Occasional difficulty in swallowing steak or other meats shouldn't necessarily be chalked up to mere coincidence.

Physicians have learned that certain adults are more prone than others to suffer from "steakhouse syndrome," a condition that occurs in people who develop a ring, called a Schatzki ring, at the lower end of the esophagus.

There are two separate tubes that extend from the neck and down through the center of the chest: the shorter one—the trachea—connects to the lungs and is used for breathing; the longer one—the esophagus—connects to the stomach and is used for swallowing.

"Steakhouse syndrome," which makes it difficult for food to pass through to the stomach, differs from choking because it involves the esophagus, rather than the trachea.

If a piece of food or another object enters the trachea by mistake and becomes lodged there, the breathing can become partially or wholly obstructed and the victim may start to choke—to gag and turn blue.

Unlike choking, steakhouse syndrome is not a life-threatening situation. The constriction that results from the syndrome occurs in the chest, rather than the throat, and no gagging sensation results.

The episode usually happens at a party or a restaurant, where the victim incompletely chews food—usually meat—while socializing and drinking alcohol.

Incidence of the syndrome may be frightening and painful, but it doesn't lead to choking in fact, victims of steakhouse syndrome aren't helped by any of the first-aid procedures used for choking victims.

The best remedy is to remain calm and to try to wash down the food with water or another non-alcoholic liquid. If this fails, one should go to the nearest hospital emergency room, where the food will be dislodged by a physician.

How can one prevent future episodes of steakhouse syndrome? One way is to pass up steak and other tough, chewy meats. If a person eats steak or other meats, he or she should take small bites and chew each morsel thoroughly before swallowing.

Eat slowly, don't laugh or talk with food in the mouth and don't drink alcohol excessively before eating.

If a person experiences recurrent swallowing problems, he or she may be a candidate for a simple procedure in which the esophagus is dilated and the Schatzki ring is stretched.

In most cases, this procedure is permanently successful, though occasionally it must be repeated in some people.

Thomas Jefferson, Colonial America's leading gourmet, grew asparagus in the greenhouses of his Monticello estate each Springtime, and I, like that gourmet of long ago, also rejoice in the slender and oh so tender stalks of asparagus now brightening up the produce counters at the markets!

I like asparagus all year 'round, even when I am reduced to consuming the canned variety, 'though that's tasty, also. Wild asparagus was undoubtedly found by the early settlers, but some of them brought asparagus roots with them from Europe.

As the pioneers moved Westward, they took along with them the roots, developing colloquial names, such as "sparrow grass," and even today, asparagus is known as "grass" somewhat in the trade.

In Europe, asparagus was considered the most luxurious of vegetables, fit for a king—so if you want to feel extra-royal at table these Spring days, cook up a bunch of asparagus and enjoy! (Asparagus is as much a part of Springtime as Spring flowers—after all, it's a member of the lily-of-the-valley family!)

Great chefs have created some of their finest and most complicated dishes with asparagus, but, to my taste, tender Spring asparagus needs only brief cooking and simple saucing to let the full flavor come through.

Asparagus is equally delicious hot, lukewarm or cold, and is an excellent accompaniment to your Easter ham or lamb or whatever. And, for brunch at Easter or other times, asparagus omelet or ham-asparagus rolls are quite tasty.

Served hot, with butter or Hollandaise sauce, or cold, with vinaigrette sauce (French dressing) and perhaps accents of chopped dill or hard-cooked eggs, asparagus is quite versatile.

Some would-be-gourmet cooks insist upon special asparagus cookers—but I like to cook mine upright in a coffee pot or in a flat layer in a heavy skillet, barely covered with ever-so-slightly salted water, steamed rather than boiled. Be sure to drain well, or your butter or other sauce will be watery.

You may also pan-cook it, Chinese style, in just enough melted butter to cover the bottom of a skillet. Heat butter until it bubbles, add tips and diagonally sliced stalks, and bring to a steam, then lower the heat and cook for four or five minutes, until barely tender. Or, try:

Asparagus Amandine
► 1 lb. hot, cooked, drained asparagus
► 1/2 stick butter or margarine
► 1/4 cup slivered almonds
► Juice of 1/2 lemon
► Pepper, salt as desired

Render the butter in a skillet, browning it until dark but not black, and saute the almonds. Add the lemon juice, and pour over the asparagus. (4 servings) or (when you want to "gild the lily" a bit:)

Asparagus and Ham Rolls
16 stalks cooked asparagus
► 3 Tbsp. salad oil
► 1 onion, minced
► 1/2 cups sliced mushrooms, fresh, preferably
► 4 thin slices boiled ham
► 1/2 cup grated cheddar cheese
► 1 cup white sauce (made with 2 Tbsp. flour, 2 Tbsp. butter 1 cup milk)

Place 4 asparagus stalks on each ham slice, roll up and secure with toothpicks. Broil 5 minutes each

Keesler open house April 20 to feature Thunderbirds

The U.S. Air Force Demonstration Squadron, The Thunderbirds, will again highlight Keesler's Open House on Wednesday, April 20, according to base officials.

This marks the fourth consecutive year the exciting aerial demonstration team has performed during the open house. The team will perform its aerial acrobatics at 4 p.m. The performance will be preceded by a ground ceremony beginning at 3:30 p.m.

The gates at Keesler will open to the public beginning at 9:30 a.m. and a student parade at 10 a.m. will signal the beginning of a full day of activities.

There will be more than a dozen aircraft on static display, musical entertainment, drill team performances, security police demonstrations, nearly 50 interior displays, and dozens of booths featuring a wide variety of food and drinks.

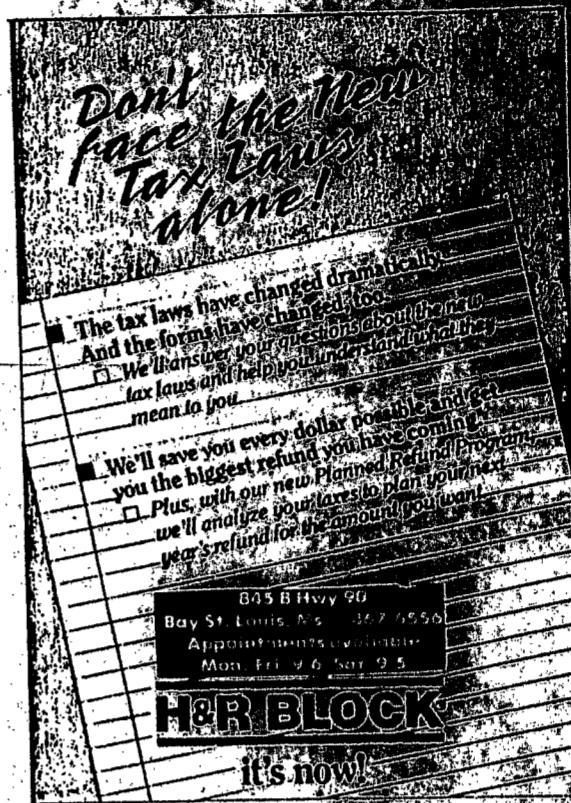

The Keesler Aero Club flight instructor pilots will offer orientation flights for $10 per person during the day when other aircraft are not flying in the area.

The Thunderbirds will be flying their F-16 "Fighting Falcons," a highly maneuverable aircraft in air-to-air combat and one of the world's best precision tactical bombers.

A scale model of the F-16, provid-

Mission statement essential to middle school effectiveness

RESTON, VA.—Every middle level school in America should have a mission statement, and it should make a promise to students, parents and the community regarding what the school will deliver.

"The plain fact is that without a mission, 'education happens by chance,'" says George Melton, National Association of Secondary School Principals deputy executive director.

"Schools that lack a clear sense of mission are characterized by aimlessness and high levels of dissonance," reads a report, written by NASSE's Council on Middle Level Education.

"There is little harmony among staff members or between staff members and students. Discipline problems are likely to occur because staff members lack a common set of expectations, and students have a poor sense of what the purpose of the school really is."

"Without a mission statement that is widely accepted by everyone in the organization, any improvement efforts are doomed from the outset."

A mission statement clearly explains what the ultimate purpose of the school is, according to Melton.

While a school philosophy might state: "We believe that individuals, if given choices, will act for their own benefit and for the common good," the mission statement would say "Park Middle School is committed to cultivating a respect for the individual and encouraging students to make sound, personal choices and decisions."

"Many schools have philosophies, but they do nothing more than indicate what people believe is nice. The mission statement delivers a promise of what students will learn," said Melton.

These statements should cover all aspects of the school program from the classroom to the athletic field to student activities to elective options. They also must be developed by everyone who will be affected by them.

"The mission statement should make it clear that the commitment is shared among the faculty members, students, parents, and community of the school," the report urges. "Without the sense of shared vision and common purpose, the mission statement is more of a hope than it is a promise."

Such a statement is especially important for middle level schools, according to NASSE's council.

"Because of their unique position in the school system, middle level schools are often vulnerable to influence from both the elementary and high schools," the report reads.

"A middle level athletic program that does not have a clear sense of its mission may simply accept a mission dictated by a high school athletic department and function as a selective 'farm' system for the high school program."

The NASSE report recommends a 10-step process for developing mission statements, including assembling a working group, gathering data, preparing a draft and reviewing it, disseminating the final version, and reviewing it on a regular basis.

While all segments of the school community should be involved in developing a school's mission statement, once it is completed everyone must follow it, according to the report.

"Schools with strong mission statements are (and should be) intolerant of behavior or practices that run contrary to the school's mission," the report indicates.

"If individuals will not support the universally agreed-upon mission of the school, and peer pressure or official sanctions are unsuccessful in changing that decision, the school should be empowered to isolate the individual to minimize his or her effects on the rest of the system or to remove the person from the system altogether."

Legion oratorial award earned by Bay High junior

Karen Terrell, a 16-year-old junior at Bay High School, was recently named winner of the oratorical contest conducted by Bourgeois-Stieffel-Ray Post 77 The American Legion, Waveland.

She was presented a $100 U.S. savings bond and a trophy, and represented Post 77 at the district competition in Gulfport, where she won a second place trophy.

She is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Terrell of Pearlington.

Bay High School English teacher Carrie Smith, Terrell's coach, accepted a trophy on behalf of the school for having the winning student. Contestants must be high school students who are citizens of the United States and who have not reached age 20. The young women give a prepared oration on some phase of the Constitution of the United States. Officials for the Post 77 contest were oratorical committee members.

The oratorical contest was held at ceremonies Donald Decker, master of ceremonies; Betty Bensabat and Kenneth Valles of Waveland, Mary Caillier of Clermont Harbor, Emily deMontzalin and Pamela Metzler of Bay St. Louis, timekeeper Jay Matsch and contestant monitor Floyd Breaux.

Superintendent cites importance of parent- teacher conferences

Bay-Waveland School District Superintendent Roger Oge describes the relationships between parents and teachers as a partnership in an extremely important venture, the education of a child.

Like any joint venture, communication and discussion are extremely important in facilitating a successful education he said.

A parent-teacher conference is one means used by schools to give parents and teachers an opportunity to meet in person to discuss the children's education, Oge continued.

Parent-teacher conferences are scheduled at all schools in the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School System on Friday, Mar. 25. Oge offered the following list of important information parents can attain from the child's teacher during a parent-teacher conference:

► Suggestions the parents can use at home to help the children succeed in school.

► The strengths and weaknesses of the children in relation to academic subject areas (achievement and ability level).

► The effort the children have put forth in classes.

► The social progress of the children (interacting with peers; behavior; perceptions of self).

► An overview of the curriculum which will be taught prior to the next parent-teacher conference. (Goal, objectives, books and materials which will be used).

► Classification of classroom rules and policies (discipline, grading, homework).

► Presentations and explanations of standardized test results.

► Samples of work (practical samples which will show progress and change).

The parent-teacher conferences are also an opportunity for parents to give the teacher information which will enable the teacher to more effectively work with the child.

Below are some of the points which parents should give to teachers about their children:

► Social needs or problems.

► After school activities, interests, talents and hobbies.

► Extracurricular activities.

► Personal interests, hobbies.

Ocean Springs wins Mathcounts competition

In a pool of 124 frogs, 75 have warts and 84 have freckles. There can be "freckleless" frogs and "wartless" frogs. At least how many frogs must have both freckles and warts?

By solving "mind benders" like this faster than students from 13 other area schools, Ocean Springs captured first place in the local Mathcounts competition recently held in Gulfport.

The Ocean Springs team consisted of David Ketchner, Quoc Le, Maggie Raphael and Emily Carlson.

Other top finishers included Long Beach, second; Our Lady Academy, third; d'Iberville, fourth, and St. Martin, fifth.

The individual champion was Ketchner. He was followed by Le, Raphael, and Natalie Von Sprecken of Long Beach.

INSTRUCTOR Antoine Boyd demonstrates safe handling of fire arms.

Delisle Elementary 'Reading Olympics' underway

The traditional torch bearer led the opening ceremony at Delisle Elementary School Tuesday Mar. 8 to officially begin the First Annual Reading Olympics.

Parents of children in grades 4-8 were asked to fill out coupons verifying the amount of time each child spends on reading at home.

Parents of Kindergarten students were encouraged to read to their children if their children were not ready to read. The class earning the most points will receive the gold medal.

To dramatize the importance of reading at home, children were asked to turn off the television during the first week of the reading incentive program. Children were issued badges that read "Turn It Off! Read!", and parents were asked to join their children in order to rediscover the pleasure of reading together.

Other activities are planned to motivate children during the five-week Olympics. These include such activities as designing book covers, writing advertisements for favorite books and visits by students who are dramatizing story characters and events.

Students will be able to track their class's progress by observing the large bar graph on display in the school auditorium.

At the end of the five-week period, the class having spent the most time reading will be rewarded by receiving a gold medal at a scheduled awards ceremony. In addition, they will be invited to attend a movie and popcorn party.

BAKE THIS YUMMY BUNNY CAKE

1. Prepare and bake cake in two 8 or 9-inch round cake pans as directed on package. Cool completely. 2. Cut cake as shown in diagrams. 3. Frost sides of each cake piece. Assemble cake in diagram on cookie sheet, large tray or 18x15-inch cardboard. Frost top of cake. 4. Sprinkle about 2/3 cups coconut evenly over top and sides of cake, gently pressing coconut onto sides. 5. Mix coconut with 1/4 cup coconut with 2 to 3 drops red food coloring until evenly colored. Roll with 1/4 cup coconut and 2 to 3 drops green food coloring. 6. Sprinkle pink food coloring over ears and bow tie; outline with chocolate chips. 7. Decorate bunny face as shown in photo. 8. Sprinkle green coconut evenly around cake.

TIP: For chocolate speckled cake, coarsely grate 1 oz. (1 square) Baker's Semi-Sweet or German Sweet Chocolate. Gently stir into white, yellow or chocolate cake batter before spreading into pans.

TIP: For chocolate bunny, frost cake with Pillsbury Ready To Spread Chocolate Fudge Frosting Supreme and sprinkle with chocolate chips. To make chocolate coconut, in medium saucepan, melt 4 oz. Baker's Semi-Sweet or German* Sweet Chocolate with 1 tablespoon vegetable shortening until smooth. Add 2 1/2 cups Baker's Angel Flake* Coconut, toss with fork until coconut is evenly coated.
